

ABOUT CLUE

Faith in Action

CLUE brings people of diverse faiths together to accompany low-wage workers, immigrants, and communities of color in the struggle to build the Beloved Community where everyone can thrive.

Solidarity

CLUE cultivates faith leaders throughout LA and Orange Counties. CLUE partners with labor unions and allied community organizations to advocate for better working conditions and laws that ensure workers and their families can enjoy a dignified quality of life.

Soul Force

In the tradition of CLUE's co-founder and civil rights icon, Rev. James Lawson, Jr., CLUE insists on utilizing the spirituality, discipline, and strategy of nonviolent resistance and direct action in order to dismantle white supremacy and transform the hearts and minds around us.

Solidarity is Sacred

"If you have come to help me you are wasting your time. But if you recognize that your liberation and mine are bound up together, we can walk together."
— Lilla Watson

JUSTICE-ROOTED COALITIONS

Black and Brown Clergy and Community Coalition and Black Jewish Justice Alliance

The BBCCC builds a common advocacy agenda for Black/African-American and Latinx pastors, focused on economic, racial, and immigrant justice.

The BJJA brings together Black and Jewish faith and advocacy organizations to work on issues of criminal justice reform and more.

BUILDING A JUST AND SACRED SOCIETY

CLUE is an organized, connected, interfaith movement for workplace dignity, justice, and thriving communities right here in Southern California.

ALL RELIGIONS BELIEVE IN JUSTICE

Rooted in our own traditions, we come together to confront injustice.

We rise in intimate solidarity with Creation and marginalized communities to change the systems that divide and impoverish us.

Honoring the diverse visions, passions, callings, and unique gifts of people of faith, we become a more powerful force in building the Beloved Community.

WALK WITH US-LITERALLY OR FIGURATIVELY

• Los Angeles

In the past year, more than 10,000 hospitality workers won a protracted fight for wages and working conditions that will allow them to live where they work. Week after week, CLUE members joined with workers at delegations to management, and city council meetings.

When the chips were down, they joined with thousands on Century Boulevard to call attention to the plight of workers, many risking arrest at the largest act of nonviolent civil disobedience in decades in So Cal.

Work continues to expand living wages for all tourism workers, as well as public service workers and others.

• Orange County

CLUE works at the intersections of economic, environmental, immigrant, and racial justice.

CLUE walks in intimate solidarity with hospitality workers, healthcare workers, tourism workers and resort workers in struggles for living wages and fair work.

CLUE is also driving faith community involvement in advocating and mobilizing for reparations and reparative justice with Coalition for a Just and Equitable California.

• Santa Monica/Westside

In Santa Monica, CLUE is working with a coalition of labor and community partners to promote strategic campaigns for living wages and housing affordability in one of the most expensive cities in the country.

Community members learn from low-wage workers about how city policies impact community health and how we can collectively work for solutions that benefit everyone.

• Long Beach and South Bay

In 2024, more than 2,000 workers won the highest wage in the nation, as Long Beach voters passed Measure RW. CLUE accompanied them every step of the way from city council meetings to door-to-door campaigning.

Work continues supporting housing justice and campaigns that improve the quality of life for all low-wage workers.
